

Lawyer

Hani S. Milwaukee Public Schools

An interest in law is a thing that I have been contemplating for a while, mainly in middle school, being my career. It later built into the thought of becoming a lawyer. Being a lawyer is a very interesting job to me, it applies to many areas of interests of mine. I'm interested in various tasks that will be addressed later that apply to being a lawyer. Of course, though, the first thing that would come to mind on becoming a lawyer would be the paycheck that lawyers get, but I have full knowledge that it takes hard work and determination to acquire that paycheck. In addition to big money, an education plays a major role on me wanting to become a lawyer. The requirements education wise is very hefty but striving through the stages of education is something that I am prepared to accomplish. But all this, education, time, and hard work, personally, rewards in having a good, well-paying job.

To me, this job/career as a lawyer is very intriguing, something I would wake up and go to in the morning without struggling to get up to get there. Being in a courtroom, defending a case, or charging, this job seems very engaging and intriguing, and that is something that I want to be a part of on a daily basis, and get paid an average of 160,000 USD annually. Along with prestige, becoming a lawyer comes with lots of praise for thing like; impressive degrees, generous salaries, and an authority over others. Also, being a lawyer brings you the opportunity to help others. The reason being quite simple, being a lawyer means you are appointed to act for another business or help someone with legal matters. Becoming a lawyer also can be rewarding for the mind, learning how to adjust to certain situations, learning more about cases, and the laws that go along with those cases, the benefits for the mind are very practical to me. Also, though, this job has other benefits that include traveling for certain cases, and the annual salary that you get.

Academically, becoming a lawyer, or education wise, becoming a lawyer, it is very time consuming. I have taken this into consideration along with the benefits of becoming a lawyer, seeing which one outweighs the other. Becoming a lawyer requires an 'impressive' amount of education. This education includes acquiring a master's degree, and afterwards attending law school and getting an exceptional grade on the BAR exam. All in all, nearly a 4-8 year education span. But this is a gap in my life that I am willing to take. Becoming a lawyer, or just having the education as a lawyer requires, opens a lot of doors for other careers if law doesn't work out for me, giving me another option. This comes useful if I am unsure about continuing this career, I already have a high level of education going into another job. For me though, a career being a lawyer is something that I probably won't give up when I am an adult.

My dream career of being a lawyer is a big goal of mine. This goal is something that I will strive to accomplish. I already try my hardest here in the 8th grade. All I need to do is keep the same mindset throughout the next years to come. Becoming a lawyer, that is my dream career, and I'm setting that goal to achieve.
